Rosolino Di Salvo

A Sicilian musician and composer who was born in Pforzheim (Germany) in 1970.

He graduated in Architecture and Guitar at V. Bellini Conservatory in Palermo.

He has performed solo with various chamber music formations, with the Piano Orchestra of V. Bellini Conservatory in Palermo and with the plectrum Orchestra "Armonie in Pizzico" in Brescia.

He publishes with the Bèrben Editions.

Musicians and colleagues of great sensitivity like Giulio Tampalini, Fabio Maida, Giorgio Mirto, Carlos Bonell, Flavio Cucchi, Claudio Piastra, Giacomo Bigoni, have performed and inserted his music in concert programs and recorded CDs. In recent years he has been predominantly oriented towards the languages of avant-gardes and his current research is based on the theme in which harmony and form represent the tangent to the various paths; in the composition of landscapes and scenarios, the lyrics structures are articulated starting from electroacoustic sounds that create the sound portrait of an environment, and according to electronic manipulation schemes inspired by the poetics of Cage, Stockhausen, Reich, Part, explicate through forms of minimalist nature, reduced to the essentials.

He has composed and performed music for contemporary art exhibitions by museums and art galleries in Italy and abroad, among the most recent, the ones in Cluj Napoca (Romania), New York (USA), London (UK), Cologne (Germany) by the studio of the artist Mary Bauermeister, wife of Karlheinz Stockhausen.
